SUR-REBUTTAL DECLARATION OF PATRICK J. CHARLES

Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1746, I, Patrick J. Charles, declare and state as follows:

- 1. I am over the age of eighteen (18) years, competent to testify to the matters contained in this declaration and testify based on my personal knowledge and information.
- 2. I have been retained by the Office of the Attorney General for California as a historical and constitutional expert on Second Amendment matters. I also have expertise in legal history and its multiple uses in adjudicating constitutional questions.
- 3. I previously provided a declaration in the above-captioned matters in support of the State of California's opposition to the plaintiffs' motions for preliminary injunction. See Decl. of Patrick J. Charles, May v. Bonta, C.D. Cal. No. 8:23-cv-01696 CJC (ADSx) (Dkt. No. 21-2); Carralero v. Bonta, C.D. Cal. No. 8:23-cv-01798 CJC (ADSx) (Dkt. No. 20-2).
- 4. I have been asked by the Office of the Attorney General to review and provide an expert opinion regarding some of the statements made in the plaintiffs' reply briefs and supporting documents in these matters. May Dkt. Nos. 29, 29-9, 29-14, 29-15; Carralero Dkt. No. 29. I have reviewed those briefs and documents, and have prepared this sur-rebuttal declaration in response.
- 5. This sur-rebuttal declaration was compiled and completed outside my official duties for the United States Air Force (USAF), Department of Air Force (DAF), and Air Force Historical Research Agency (AFHRA). Moreover, the contents and opinions expressed in this declaration are solely my own, and not those of the USAF, DAF, AFHRA, the Department of Defense, or the federal government.

I. RESPONSE TO PLAINTIFFS' GENERAL STATEMENTS ON SENSITIVE PLACES

- 6. As the Supreme Court has acknowledged, the Statute of Northampton and its tenets "survived both Sir John Knight's Case and the English Bill of Rights," N.Y. State Rifle & Pistol Ass'n v. Bruen, 142 S. Ct. 2111, 2142 (2022), and subsequently was adopted in the American Colonies, id. at 2142-43; see also JOEL PRENTISS BISHOP, COMMENTARIES ON THE LAWS OF STATUTORY CRIMES § 784 (1873) (noting that the "offence" codified by the Statute of Northampton was already part of the "earlier common law," which "bears a date long anterior to the settlement of this country" that is "adapted to the wants of every civilized community"). And one of the key tenets of the Statute of Northampton that was embraced in the American Colonies was its "fairs" and "markets" language. 2 Edw. 3, c. 3 (1328) (Eng.).
- 7. This is historically indisputable as several late eighteenth century American legal sources attest. See 2 The Perpetual Laws, of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, from the Establishment of its Constitution to the Second Session of the General Court, in 1798, at 259 (1799) (confirming that no person "shall ride or go armed offensively, to the fear or terror of the good citizens of this Commonwealth"); Francois-Xavier Martin, A Collection of Statutes of the Parliament of England in Force in the State of North Carolina 60-61 (1792) (attached hereto as Exhibit A) (confirming the survival of the "fairs" and "markets" language by the late eighteenth century); A Collection of all such acts of the General Assembly of Virginia, of Public and Permanent Nature, as are now in force 30 (1803), https://catalog.hathitrust.org/Record/009779357 (confirming the survival of the "fairs" and "markets" language at the turn of the nineteenth century).
- 8. Furthermore, the Statute of Northampton is not the only English statute that regulated armed carriage at specific, sensitive locations. See Charles Decl.

¶¶ 9-10. Plaintiffs' declarant, Clayton Cramer, claims that laws cited in my 1 2 declaration would have only applied in instances where the carrying of arms would 3 disrupt government functions. See Clayton Cramer Rebuttal Decl. ¶¶ 31-35, May v. 4 Bonta Dkt. No. 29-15. That is mistaken. For instance, the 1351 Royal Proclamation prohibited going armed "within the City of London, or within the suburbs, or in any 5 6 other places between said city and the Place of Westminster." Royal Proclamation 7 as to the Wearing of Arms in the City, and at Westminster; and as to Playing at 8 Games in the Palace at Westminster, Memorials of London and Life 268-69, 273 (H.T. Riley ed., 1868). And although the Royal Proclamation's preamble states that 9 10 this rule of law was laid down because people with arms were attempting to disrupt the proceedings of Parliament, the legal language of the proclamation is clear in its 11 12 prohibition of carrying arms in those locations for any reason. Id. 13 Cramer also errs in his search for 4 Hen. 4, c. 29 (1402), which stated 9. 14 that "no Man be armed nor bear defensible armor to Merchant Towns Churches nor 15 Congregations in the same, nor in the Highways, in affray of the Peace or the King's Liege people." Cramer asserts there was "no such law." Cramer Rebuttal 16 17 Decl. ¶ 35. But it is contained in volume two of the Statutes of the Realm. See 2 18 THE STATUTES OF THE REALM 141 (1816) (1963 reprint), https://catalog.hathitrust.org/Record/012297566 (included as Exhibit 6 to 19

10. Thus, it remains true that "armed carriage restrictions and the English common law against 'going armed' in urban and densely populated locations indeed made their way into the American Colonies and subsequent United States." Charles Decl. ¶ 12. Similarly, laws prohibiting unlawful "armed assemblies...no matter whether said assemblies were deemed the militia or not" were also part of American law prior to, contemporaneous with, and after the ratification of the Second Defendant's Compendium of Historical Laws and Treatises, May Dkt. 22).

- 3 the early-to-mid nineteenth century. WILLIAM RAWLE, A VIEW OF THE
- 4 CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES 126 (2d ed., 1829) (noting that the Second
- 5 Amendment "ought not...in any government...be abused to the disturbance of the
- 6 public peace," which included the assembling "of persons with arms, for an
- 7 unlawful purpose").

11. While the Plaintiffs dispute this, see Pls.' Evidentiary Objections to Charles Decl. ¶ 2, May v. Bonta Dkt. No. 29-9; Cramer Rebuttal Decl. ¶¶ 30-38, the evidentiary record is rather clear and straightforward: location specific restrictions on armed carriage in densely populated locations, what are otherwise known as "sensitive places," were part of American law prior to, contemporaneous with, and after the ratification of the Second Amendment. In short, there is indeed evidence supporting Anglo-American history and tradition of prohibiting the carrying of dangerous weapons at so-called "sensitive places."

II. RESPONSE TO PLAINTIFFS' STATEMENTS ON REGULATIONS OF LIQUOR AND ARMS BEARING

12. Although the Plaintiffs and Cramer object to conclusions on the regulatory history of liquor and arms bearing, they do not provide any substantive historical evidence that counters it. The combination of liquor and arms bearing was widely deemed dangerous by the mid-to-late nineteenth century, as numerous laws attest. See Charles Decl. ¶¶ 22-26.

² Here, too, Cramer inaccurately characterizes my declaration as having "grossly misquoted" Rawle. Cramer Rebuttal Decl. ¶¶ 48-50. In actuality, my declaration (Charles Decl. ¶ 12), quoted verbatim language from Rawle's treatise, which states that the Second Amendment does not protect any "assemblage of person with arms, for an unlawful purpose…" RAWLE, supra, at 129.

III. RESPONSE TO PLAINTIFFS' STATEMENTS ON REGULATION OF ARMS BEARING IN PLACES OF WORSHIP

- 13. Although the Plaintiffs assert that many eighteenth-century era "bring your guns to church laws" were not racist, the historical record strongly suggests otherwise—and indeed, Cramer concedes as much. Cramer Decl. ¶ 55.
- 14. To be sure, in accordance with their compulsory militia power, the colonies of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, enacted several laws requiring parishioners to bring their firearms to church to either (a) conduct mandatory militia training or (b) have their arms available should the colony come under attack from indigenous tribes. However, in the southern American Colonies, particularly Virginia, Maryland, Georgia, and South Carolina, where the institution of slavery was rampant, "bring your guns to church" laws were enacted for the racist purpose of maintaining slavery. This is not only my assessment having personally examined these laws and their historical genesis, see Patrick J. Charles, Racist History and the Second Amendment: A Critical Commentary, 43 CARDOZO L. REV. 1343, 1351 (2022), but also is the view of others, including Dr. Salley Hadden, who specializes in this area, SALLY E. HADDEN, SLAVE PATROLS: LAW AND VIOLENCE IN VIRGINIA AND THE CAROLINAS 23-24, 140-41 (2001).

IV. RESPONSE TO PLAINTIFFS' STATEMENTS ON THE RELEVANCE ON CARRY PROHIBITIONS IN COMMERCIAL OR CORPORATE LIMITS

- 15. Plaintiffs mischaracterize my declaration's discussion on ordinances prohibiting the carrying of firearms in the "commercial" or "corporate" limits as "prohibiting carry in entire cities…" Pls. Evidentiary Objections to Charles Decl.
- ¶ 6. From the mid-to-late nineteenth century, however, the "commercial" or "corporate" limits generally encompassed those areas where the people regularly congregated to conduct shopping, business, and government affairs.
